

MENOMINEE RANGE HISTORICAL FOUNDATION

RESEARCH REQUEST FORM

The Menominee Range Historical Foundation's extensive archives, consisting of original newspapers, books and documents of interest to historians and genealogists, are not open to individuals at this time, but volunteer researchers familiar with the collection do conduct searches for a fee of $10 per hour plus copying costs. Monies generated help support the museums.

An obituary index from Iron Mountain-Kingsford's The Daily News dating from 1978 to the present provides an excellent research tool, as does the extensive genealogical file of over 100,000 cards created over many years by local genealogist and researcher Hazel Dault from early newspapers, courthouse records and other resources. Her cards are cross-indexed and provide valuable information.
